

THE PROSP(A)RITY PROJECT

Pursuing prosp(a)rity by defeating disparity.

Ashley Wells

Co-Founder & Advisory Council Member

Ashley Wells is a writer and scholar who is obtaining her Ph.D. in American Studies & Culture. Her research interests revolve around Black American women and mental health disparities. She is passionate about lifting Black women out of the hole that the debt crisis puts them into, and she keeps this goal at the forefront of her mind as a Co-Founder and Advisory Council member of The Prosp(a)rity Project.

Outside of her roles on The Prosp(a)rity Project, Ashley is dedicated to impacting those in her graduate student communities. She is an Executive Board member of Washington State University's Graduate & Professional Student Association, President of the Graduate Women of Color Alliance at WSU, and a former President of Columbia University's Arts & Sciences Graduate Council.

Ashley has received two master's degrees: one from Columbia University and one from Dartmouth College. She received her B.A. from Binghamton University.
